

Chasing Chiles: Listening to Latin American Pepper Producers Respond to Climate Change

Gary Nabhan gives an introduction to his latest book.
Salsa reception and Book signing after the talk!

Wednesday, April 27th from 4-5:30pm
Marshall Building, Room 490

(Reception to follow downstairs at the Center for Latin American Studies, Marshall, Room 280).

Chasing Chiles

looks at both the future of place-based foods and the effects of climate change on agriculture through the lens of the chile pepper—from the farmers who cultivate this iconic crop to the cuisines and cultural traditions in which peppers play a huge role.

Gary Paul Nabhan is an internationally-celebrated nature writer, seed saver, conservation biologist and sustainable agriculture activist who has been called “the father of the local food movement” by Mother Earth News. Gary is also an orchard-keeper, wild forager and Ecumenical Franciscan brother in his hometown of Patagonia, Arizona near the Mexican border.

Copies of the book will be on sale following the talk.

Co-Sponsored by the Southwest Center, the Center for Latin American Studies and the UA Bookstores. Supported by fund from a U.S. Department of Education Title VI Grant.